The Social Innovation Safari is a two-week immersive learning experience where designers, social workers, academics, entrepreneurs, researchers, and practitioners from around the world work together to problem solve real-life social issues.

The approach will be collaborative, action-oriented, and inherently social. The Safari is a methodology for developing collective problem-solving capabilities and skills. Imagine joining an interdisciplinary dream team, and discovering new ways to prompt social change!

This year Kennisland works together with the University of Amsterdam and international development organisation Hivos.
